If You Have

temporarily idle its safety should be your first consideration. There is no better security for your savings than a certificate of deposit in the First National bank.

Those Liquor Cases.

During the last term of district court two important liquor cases were disposed of by Judge Orr.

Minnie Brown was the first offender. She was tried to jury, found guilty, and the judge imposed a fine of $500, which sum was largely increased by attorneys' fees and costs—perhaps reaching the thousand dollar mark.

Grace Leroy was the other culprit. She pleaded guilty and was fined $200; besides she was taxed $50 attorney's fee and costs which made the round total $340.00.

No order respecting the disposition of the seized liquor has been made by the court. The female defendants, however, have made it clear that they have no further interest in the stuff—and the man or men who furnished the liquor to the women have so far been too modest to come forward and claim it.

In the Christian Church.

A revival is in progress at the Christian church, conducted by Rev. B. B. Burton of Des Moines, Iowa. Mr. Burton has served as pastor at Colorado Springs, Colo., Sacramento and San Jose, Calif., and as evangelist he has conducted meetings in nearly every section of the United States. He has traveled extensively in Europe, Egypt and Palestine and his varied experiences have given him greater power in the special work to which he is devoting his life.

The Los Angeles Daily Record says of him: "He is full of soul passion and versatile genius and his powers of description are wonderful."

The meetings begin every night at 7:45 o'clock.

Xmas Furs.

Furs possess the Xmas qualities in supreme degree. While they appeal to feminine taste and fancy the same as diamonds, lace and perfumes, they are also articles of great utility—real necessities. There's even the romantic about furs too. What strange remote regions they are gathered from. What hardships and adventures encountered by the hardy trappers or hunters. We offer very tempting articles in this line, including the new rug muffs from $4.00 up; the tidy stylish cravats; the throws or 4 in-hands; the all-fur scarfs and the silk lined ones; the fur turbans or caps;—in mink, in fox, in squirrel, in opossum, in cooney. Also children's and and misses' sets of collar and muffs at $2.00 to $3.00. We invite your inspection. The Thompson D. G. Co. The utmost value.

We Appreciate the Attention

that our reduced prices on ladies' suits caused during the stormy days of the past week. If people go out in the storm to gain the income it is suitable that unusual opportunities to spend the same with great saving should be grasped. We continue to offer the actual stock of suits as follows: $20.00 suits for $15.00, $15.50 suits for $10.00, $18.00 suits for $14.50, $12.00 suits for $8.50. You will save dollars by an early call. The Thompson D. G. Co. Utmost service.

Before the public Mr. Newens is a monologist, which is to say, he is an individual artist presenting many characters in ONE CONTINUOUS STORY PLAY. Those who like an evening full of entertainment and enjoyment should hear Mr. Newens, next Monday. There is not a dry moment in his program.

When you hear Mr. Newens you hear one of the best entertainers on the American platform. Listen just a moment. The above statement is something more than "hot air."

All of the lecturers and concert companies sent out by the Redpath Lyceum Bureau are trained and coached by Mr. Newens. The principal part of his time now is taken up as art critic for the Redpath people. When you hear him you hear a man whose word goes further than the word of any other man in the United States today in shaping the work of the lyceum platform.

"Girls."

the new Clyde Fitch comedy, will be the offering at the Temple theatre on Tuesday, Dec. 14th. Messrs. Sam S. and Lee Shubert are sponsors for the production, and as usual have given it a most sumptuous mounting, and provided an acting company that permits of no special mention, each being selected with a view as to their ability to properly portray the roles assigned them. "Girls" is essentially a play to create laughs, and for its foundation has the first quality for success: originality and realism. It is refreshing because it does not depend upon coarseness or horse play to win its laughs. For its principal characters there are three charming girls who have sworn to avoid all men and never marry. They mean well, but have thoughtlessly overlooked many little things that bring them in contact with the stronger sex, and with the usual result. The declarations made by them in the first act do not hold, and before the end of the last they are hopelessly entangled in serious love affairs.
